DETAILED ACTION

Drawings

The drawings are objected to because reference numbers are not in figure 10 as stated on page 25, line 3. Corrected drawing sheets in compliance with 37 CFR 1.121(d) are required in reply to the Office action to avoid abandonment of the application. Any amended replacement drawing sheet should include all of the figures appearing on the immediate prior version of the sheet, even if only one figure is being amended. The figure or figure number of an amended drawing should not be labeled as "amended." If a drawing figure is to be canceled, the appropriate figure must be removed from the replacement sheet, and where necessary, the remaining figures must be renumbered and appropriate changes made to the brief description of the several views of the drawings for consistency. Additional replacement sheets may be necessary to show the renumbering of the remaining figures. The replacement sheet(s) should be labeled "Replacement Sheet" in the page header (as per 37 CFR 1.84(c)) so as not to obstruct any portion of the drawing figures. If the changes are not accepted by the examiner, the applicant will be notified and informed of any required corrective action in the next Office action. The objection to the drawings will not be held in abeyance.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1, 14, 15 and 23-25 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Sherwood (US 4,699,144) in view of Anderson (US 4,640,287).

Sherwood discloses a prosthetic brassiere (10) with at least one back strap (28) and fastening arrangement (30,32) as broadly claimed in addition to a first and second bra cup (24,26) each with a cup shell with an exterior surface at 24,26 and interior surface 18,20 that opens to define an inner volume. However, Sherwood does not specifically disclose the front coupling means. Anderson discloses a bra with a front coupling means, which is well known in bra construction (See col. 3, lines 67-68). Accordingly it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art to include a front closure means for ease in donning and doffing the bra as desired. Sherwood also includes a volume of padding (14) in the first bra cup and second bra cup wherein the pocket retains the padding/prosthetic breast. Anderson discloses the frontal hook and loop fastener and a flap (44), which covers the hook, and loop material as claimed. (See col. 3, lines 67-68 and col. 3, lines 57-66). Accordingly it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the bra of Sherwood to include a front fastening means with a hook and loop fastener and covering flap as disclosed by Anderson for ease in donning and doffing the bra and to hide it from view.

Claims 2-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Sherwood (US 4,699,144) in view of Anderson (US 4,640,287) and further in view of Rouser et al (US 5,634,245).

Sherwood and Anderson disclose the invention substantially as claimed. However, Sherwood and Anderson do not specifically disclose the fastener arrangement (10) as including the first and second jaw panels (40) with a tongue (20) with complementary fastening material (hook and loop) there between. Rouser et al discloses a fastener with first and second jaw panels as seen in figure 5. Accordingly it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to substitute the fasteners of Sherwood and Anderson to include the jaw/tongue fastener as disclosed by Rouser et al for ease in fastening the fastener and to provide secure attachment of the component parts. (See Rouser et al, figures 4 and 5 and col. 10, lines 1-22).

Claim 6 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Sherwood (US 4,699,144) in view of Anderson (US 4,640,287) as applied to claim 1 above, and further in view of Murray (US 3,311,112).

Sherwood and Anderson disclose the invention substantially as claimed. However, they do not disclose placing separating fasteners at the claimed locations in order to remove the straps from the bra as desired. Murray discloses removable fastening components in order to remove the bra straps from the bra as desired including 30', 32', 46', 22' and 23'. Accordingly it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to construct the shoulder straps in a removable manner in the locations as disclosed by Murray in order to remove the straps from the bra as desired. (See Murray, figure 4 and col. 3, lines 12-37).

Claims 7-13 and 16-22 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

None of the cited references alone or in combination disclose the retaining flap and aperture as in claims 7-13 and the privacy panel construction as claimed in claims 16-22.

Conclusion
